

Wednesday 8 September 2010

PR/177/10

Farmers in NSW welcome the end of uncertainty

The NSW Farmers' Association welcomes the end of the current uncertainty and looks forward to working with the new Federal Government.

NSW Farmers' Association President Charles Armstrong trusts the result will be positive for the future direction of rural Australia.

"We are keen to see the Government address issues such as property rights, the Murray Darling Basin Plan and delivering high speed internet access to all Australians, in line with its pre-election commitments," Mr Armstrong said.

The NSW Farmers' Association also acknowledges the difficult process the three rural Independents have endured over the last 17 days and looks forward to working with them on policy issues important to its members.

"It is pleasing to see issues concerning rural and regional Australia pushed to the forefront of the political agenda and trust this will continue," Mr Armstrong said.

Contact: Olivia Suzanski (Media Officer) 0429 990 218

If you no longer wish to be on our mailing list simply click here to unsubscribe. If you are having difficulty unsubscribing from this page please email us on media@nswfarmers.org.au and we will remove you from our lists.